On that weekend's leave I got off the train at Gillingham and I thought, 'there's a bus, save time I'll get on the bus'. So I got on the bus and got my money ready and a conductress came up to me and says – really leaned very close to me so we're nose to nose and in a very loud voice she said 'foreign troops travel for nothing on our buses'. And I put the money away. I was wearing a beret and they weren't used to people – soldiers wearing berets. She obviously thought I was French [laughs]!
