Well, I can only say I adopted Britain as my home and it still is. My husband always used to say you were born in Austria, you were adopted by Britain or England and married by – through Italy. So really my life been touch – very fortunate considering it all, I mean, people were much worse off. So I can – and always when we used to go later on we used to go to Italy or Athens (??) I was always glad to come back to England, it gave me sort of a sense of peace and even now with all this chaos going on it's still not too bad.
